The Daily Courant.

Thurſday, July 16. 1724.

London, June 16.

Yeſterday arrived the Mail from France.

Cadiz, June 20.

REAR Admiral Godin, who commands the Squadron of their High Mightineſſes the States General of the United Provinces, having received Information the 30th paſt in the Mediterranean, where he was cruizing, that four or five Algerine Rovers infeſted the Coaſts of Portugal, between the River of Lisbon and Cape St. Vincent, paſſed the Streights the 4th Inſtant to give them Chace. On the 11th, at Two a Clock in the Afternoon, he made up five Leagues to the N. N. E. of the ſaid Cape, where he deſcried about three Leagues from him to the N. E. a Ship that was ſailing Northwards: Whereupon the ſaid Rear Admiral commanded forthwith Capt. Schryver to go after her, and followed himſelf at a little Diſtance with the reſt of the Squadron. The ſame Evening, before Sun-ſet, the ſaid Captain came up within Gun Shot of the Corſair, and hoiſting his Colours immediately, he fired a Gun at him; but the Ship, far from anſwering, made away from him towards the Shore. Then Capt. Schryver gave him a full Broadſide, and forced him thereby to ſhew his Algerine Colours. As the Wind began to abate, and it being almoſt calm, the Rear Admiral detached two Shallops of his Squadron to tow Captain Schryver's Ship, who in the Night following attack'd the ſaid Corſair two or three Times with all the Fury imaginable. The Corſair made a ſtout Defence; but ſome of the Cartouches on board the Dutch Ship having unluckily taken Fire, blew up, and ſet the Ship on Fire, which they were obliged to extinguiſh, and to leave off for ſome time firing at the Enemy, but kept as near as they poſſibly could till the next Morning, when they diſcovered him again ſailing Eaſtward along the Coaſt. At 10 a Clock he came within Gun Shot of him again and kept a continual Fire upon him till Six in the Evening, when his Mizen and Fore-Maſt were both ſhot away. Then Captain Schryver boarded, and after a bloody Fight, the Corſair was obliged to hoiſt his White Flag and ſurrender. The Ship was called the Orange-Tree, commanded by Hamet Reis Ben Tobach; ſhe had Ports for 40 Guns, but mounted only 36; ſhe had on board 256 Moors, and 26 Chriſtian Slaves, Dutch, Spaniſh, Portugueze, and others. The Corſair had 20 Men killed in the Fight, and many others wounded, whereof ſeveral are ſo dangerouſly that every Day ſome die of their Wounds. As for Capt. Schryver, he had but one Man killed, and 30 Wounded. The Algerine Slaves, who were forthwith diſtributed among the Dutch Men of War, report, that their Ship ſailed from Algier the 1ſt of May in Company with two other Corſairs, commanded by Hali Reis, and Soliman Reis Siakmably, from whom they were ſeparated by a Storm the 9th of the ſaid Month: That having come within 30 Leagues of the Tagus, they took a Dutch Fluta called the St. Francis, laden with Salt for Amſterdam, and ſent her to Algiers. The 14th in the Morning, Capt. Schryver came with his Prize into our Bay, and was followed in the Evening by Rear-Admiral Godin with the other Ships of his Squadron, after having cruized two Days longer off Cape Vincent and St. Maries. The two Spaniſh Men of War called the Robin and Conquerour, are ready for ſailing, to convoy as far as Cape Vincent the two Veſſels that carry Quickſilver to New-Spain, being to cruize afterwards againſt the Algerines on the Coaſts of Biſcay, together with the two Men of War that have been lately built in one of the Ports of that Province, whereof one is called the St. Louis, of 80 Guns, and the other St. Ferdinand, of 60 Guns, both of them commanded by Admiral Caſtagneta. The Intendant Patino is returned from the Court of Madrid, with Orders to haſten their Departure. To prevent all Diſorders among the Troops here for the future, an Ordinance has been publiſhed, forbidding all Soldiers on Pain of Death to carry Arms about them except upon Duty.

Madrid, June 27. On the 22d Inſtant, the laſt of the eight Days for celebrating the Feſtival of Corpus Chriſti, the King aſſiſted at the Proceſſion that was made in the Royal Convent of the bare-footed Carmelites. On the 25th, their Catholick Majeſties went to Chapel in the Monaſtry of St. Jerome. On the 20th Don Charles Uſſel and Guimbarda, Knight of the Order of Alcantara, and Gentleman of the King's Bed-Chamber, had the Honour to Compliment his Majeſty upon his Acceſſion to the Crown, as Deputy of the City of Cordoua, being preſented by the Marqueſs de Briego Duke de Medina Celi. On the 23d Don Francis Anthony de Salſedo Marqueſs de Vadillo, and Don Franciſco Anthony de Aquire, Deputies of the Province of Alara, had the Honour to wait on the King upon the ſame Subject. The 25th the Marqueſs de Santa Cruz ſet out for the Palace of St. Ildefonſo, where he is to continue in the ſame Station he ſerved King Philip and his Queen in before. On this Occaſion the King gave to the Marqueſs de Valero the Place of Steward of the Queen's Houſehold. At the ſame Time his Majeſty was pleaſed to make ſeveral Military Promotions. We learn by Letters from Carthagena in America, that the Galleons which ſailed on the 31ſt of December laſt from Cadiz, under the Command of Lieutenant-General Don Charles Grillo, were ſafely arrived there.

Stockholm, June 28. The Ship which carried M. Baſſewitz, the Duke of Holſtein's Miniſter, with his Family and Baggage to Revel, is come back this Day. The Ship laden with Iron which lately ſtruck againſt the Bridge and ſunk, is weighing up again. Yeſterday in the Afternoon the large new Ship built upon the Holm, called Terra Nova, was launched, after which all the Seamen belonging thereto were treated in the Evening: Meſſ. Grill and Witmack, two eminent Merchants of this City, at whoſe Charge the Ship has been built, will ſend her ſhortly to Spain. We ſee with Pleaſure our Commerce increaſing every Day by the great Number of Ships that arrive from foreign Countries, as likewiſe from the Ports of Finland and other Sea Ports of this Kingdom. The King and Queen continue to ſpend moſt of their Time at Carelsberg, and it is not yet known what Day they will begin their Journey to viſit the ſeveral Provinces: And as they have laid aſide for this Year their their Journey to Germany, we expect to see here in a short Time the Prince of Hesse-Cassel, his Majesty's Brother.

fore he goes upon his other Commissions.

Paris, July 22. The Emperour having nominated the Duke d'Aremberg his Ambassadour at this Court, that Lord will set out the End of this Month for Vienna, to receive his Instructions. M. L'Abbé Jourdain, who returned some time ago from Basil in Switzerland, whither he was sent by the Abbot Bignon to take a true Copy of the General Council formerly held in that Town, is just now made Under Secretary of the King's Library. Messieurs de Fourmont and de Cource have been elected by the Academy of Belles Lettres to fill up the two Places of the Abbot Anselme, superannuated, and M. de Bouvin who is dead. On the 15th, four of the Grand Mousquetairs, charged to have had a Hand in the Uproar that happened the 9th Instant in St. Anthony's Street, were committed to the Bastille, and this Week they have been tried and condemned to be broke at the Head of their Corps; and since this all the Grand Mousquetairs are forbidden to have any Quartel with the Town Watch, on pain of being sent to the Islands of St. Margaret. Marshal du Bourg arrived here on the 13th from his Government of Alsace. The King is so much delighted with Chantilly, that he has put off his Departure from thence for eight Days; so that his Majesty will not return to Versailles before the 5th of next Month. On the 18th they arrested upon Change several Brokers who sold false Subscriptions or Lottery Tickets, who since declared that they had them from one Correge, who ordered them to sell them. Correge has since been apprehended, and it is said that he owns that he had counterfeited them by means of a Plate which he had caused to be done at Lyons, and that he had sold already to the Value of 250000 Livres. The Equipage of Mr. Walpole, his Britannick Majesty's Ambassadour, arrived here Yesterday by Water. The Duke of Wirtenberg has named for his Grand Bailiff of Montbelad, Baron de Montigny, his Envoy at this Court. The Duke of Orleans, who set out the 12th Instant to meet the Dutchess his Spouse, arrived the next Day in the Afternoon at Notre Dame de l'Esprit, a Village two Leagues beyond Chalons. The Duke perceiving the Dutchess's Coach at some Distance from him, alighted to meet that Princess, who had likewise got out of her Coach; and after having embraced, they went both together into the Dutchess's Coach, and arrived at Seven in the Evening at Sarri, the Bishop Count of Chalons's Country House, who received them very splendidly, and gave them the same Night the Nuptial Blessing.

London, July 2, 1724.

A Tryal coming on this Day before the Right Honourable the Lord Chief Justice King, between George Moult, Chymist, Plaintiff, and James Durham, Defendant, for the said Defendant's causing to be printed and publish'd a Defamatory Libel. After Council had been heard and Witnesses examin'd on both Sides, a Proposal was made in Court to the Plaintiff, that the Defendant should acknowledge the Injury thereby offered, in as publick a Manner as he had defam'd the Plaintiff, which the Plaintiff accepted of; and the said Defendant then sign'd a Paper, which by Rule of Court, and by Consent of the said Durham, was to be printed and publish'd, and is as follows:

Whereas in the Whitehall Evening-Post of Saturday the nine and twentieth Day of February 1723, there was a Letter printed by the Direction of me James Durham, directed to Mr. George Moult, and highly reflecting upon the said Mr George Moult in respect to his Dealing as a Chymist; I do hereby acknowledge that such Reflections were False and Groundless, and I do beg Mr. Moult's Pardon for the same.

And I do consent that the same shall be put into the Whitehall Evening Post, and any other Publick News-Papers, as the said Mr. George Moult shall think fit.

James Durham.
